Eight men were injured severely and between fifty and sixty passengers, including several women, were badly shaken up when an Arlington Heights electric car jumped the track in West Summerville early to-day and crashed against a telegraph pole with such force that the pole was cut down.

The car was crushed in such a manner that both the front and rear doors were held shut, and the passengers were imprisoned for several minutes. The injured were:

Clifford, one of the injured men, is a letter carrier and son of the postmaster at Arlington. The two injured men whose names were not taken were treated by Mrs. John Colquhoun, the matron of the City Home, which is near the spot where the accident took place.

The car was bound from Arlington Heights to Boston. It was filled, most of the passengers being men, it being about 6 o'clock in the morning.

The car had reached Waterville street and West Broadway where a track switches off into the car barns. The front trucks of the car passed over the switch, but the rear trucks took the rails of the switch into the barn. That threw the rear of the car over against a telegraph pole with a terrific crash.

Passengers in a Hail of Glass.

All of the passengers were thrown from their seats and glass cut into their faces and necks like a whirl of hail. The shock was so great that the car was thrown up and down and the glass went out and tumbled in the air, carrying its multitude of wires with it.

Several had been sent to the doctors, and Dr. Edwin L. Pillsbury and Dr. H. Stuart Nelson were found. They hurried to the scene and treated the men, most of whose names are given.

Those who were working and those men and others, slightly hurt, Mr.

The greatest confusion reigned. There was a risk for the future. Both of them found it so lightly weighed that they could not be opened. It was seen that at least five of the passengers were badly hurt. They were cut and bruised and knocked almost senseless.

After several minutes' hard work from within and without the end doors were pulled open and the passengers were rescued.

When Sheriff "Bob" Chanler met Lina Cavalieri at a tea in Washington Square she seemed a demure, unsophisticated girl—shy and retiring.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Chandler-Cavallieri romance passed through a few more phases to-day. From Paris, Mlle. Anna Cavallieri sent a cablegram to a woman friend in New York, declaring that she would soon be on her way to New York to claim the fortune transferred to her by Robert W. Chandler before he married her. The message also announced that she would join Chandler here.

Meantime plans were perfected for a actual test of the legality of the Chandler-Cavallieri suit, before Judge Belmont here tomorrow. It will come up Mortgage plans were perfected for an actual test of the legality of the Chandler antenuptial contract before Judge Delehanty here tomorrow. It will come up in the hearing of the suit of a Fifth avenue tailor to recover $978 from Chandler, alleged to be due for the clothes in which he was married and other garments.

Judge Delehanty will be called upon to decide whether the antenuptial contract binds up Chandler's property in favor of Cavallieri or whether creditors have precedence over that contract.

Moved to Spite First Wife.
Hill and wife, Chandler married Cavallaro was said for the first time today. The story goes that when Chandler was divorced by his first wife, he was a member of the "Bachelors' Club" and he was so popular with the prettiest women in the world just to show Mrs. Chandler No. 1 that he was attractive in beautiful and charming women. He had a very good time and he was very popular. Then followed the coming in, in which Chandler married money upon the single and the wife of the "Bachelors' Club" and the marriage.
Chandler was in his efforts to give up, but not with authority he had to give up when he fell asleep on the couch. The only thing he could transfer to Cavallaro was a small amount of money, and there is a mortgage of $10,000 on the Figures on the Estate.

Next she discarded the innocent role. "You Americans are such big, strong men," she said, "and I love big, strong men."

Soon Cavalieri began to visit Chanler in his studio. She would sit by him, making love as only Cavalieri could.

Chanler followed Cavaleri to Paris. Then she threw her arms around him and cried: "Bob, I love you!"

This is the pertinent question asked by John Armstrong Chancellor of his brother "Bob." Certainly it is not Cavalieri.

There is a gale going along the coast which is characterized so far by very high wind and little rain. The wind increased in velocity from 16 to 22 miles an hour and the rain fell in heavy showers. The wind is blowing with force from the south, and is moving with velocity. The wind, strange to say, was twice as high here as it was at the other end of the island. There was a tremendous tide in the bay, and the water reached the height of about twelve feet.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Ella Willton will not follow the example of Lila Jean Libby in going before the footlights capturing and winning and generally making the hearts of vaudeville audiences. A son Willton was desirous of lifting Mrs. Willton from New Haven to New York, but the pacesetter replied: "No."

"My Dear Mr. Willton—I thank you for your offer, but I am happy to decline it. I am a perfectly happy wife and am contented with my lot. I have no desire to enjoy my literary work and its opportunities for usefulness. I have a husband and a beautiful home which he provides for me. Why should I want more?"

After a million a week would not tempt me to go before the footlights. Ask some one who needs and wants that. I am contented with my lot. ELLA WILTON.
